

How to Format a Personal Statement

Today, you may consider or believe that a personal statement structure have evolved over the past years. Since, personal statements are part of the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service or UCAS, it is one of the main things that you as a student must be mindful of should you want to let yourself have a fruitful professional career and a successful, well-established financial life. In fact, most students, even the most successful professional have struggled with their own personal statements.

How is that possible? Well, the most credible and reliable writer of today have struggled to write about their own selves. Most students do not even know how to deal with the structure of personal statement. However, today is all but a different story.

Personal Statement Structure

As a student, most would dream or wonder about the university or college that they would like to get into for them to finish the course or program they would like to graduate and earn diploma from, but most do not have any idea regarding personal statement structure. Well, today is your lucky day. Check out the following listed below with regard to how personal statements should be structured.

- The UCAS Advice – before you start to write your personal statement, get to understand what they've said so that you get to have a general overview of what they want regarding personal statement format or structure.
- Aims of a personal statement – this basically asks to define the actual goal of a personal statement and what it should do for your program application that is why you need to have a really good structure of personal statement.
- A Subject and You – simply asks you to tell the admissions committee the reason why you would like to be a part of the program you've chosen. When writing about it, please do not go around in circles. Be direct to the point.
- Important Notes about Yourself – when tackling this part of a personal statement, you should ensure that you let the admissions committee a clear understanding of what you can contribute to the program you've chosen and not what you've achieved in life.
- Goals of a Personal Statement – answer this question, what should I include in my personal so that it sounds good? Well, the answer is quite simple; don't write about things that most applicants do, avoid flattering the admissions committee and the school. They are already aware that they're good at what they do.

- Language of Your Personal Statement – this requires that your personal statement format be as precise, concise and well thought of so that it sounds good enough for the admissions committee to let you be one of their interviewee.

Personal Statement Format

A personal statement structure or format is one of the hardest things that students have to deal with once they have the final draft of their paper. Though most of you would find sample formats or personal statements widely available online, you should be careful about relying too much on it. It might be better that you get to consult your elderly as to what made their application a successful one using their own personal statements. Consider the following suggestions regarding a personal statement format.

- Most admissions committee would suggest that you keep your the structure of personal statement have a word count ranging from 500 to 800 words. Writing one that exceeds the limit or one that is short of the word count might be an opportunity missed for you, which means that important parts of your application is not going to be read.
- Choose a font style that is highly readable like Times New Roman or Bookman Old Style. As recommended by most admissions committee, you should avoid using a 12-pt size, but not lesser than a 10-pt size font.
- If your personal statement format is more than one page, see to it that you get to number each page.
- Most successful application of today has a personal statement format for the margins set to an inch.
- Use single spacing in your text, while skipping one line between each paragraph in your personal statement structure.

Top Ten Personal Statement Openers

Before accomplishing the final draft or even think about the structure of personal statement, you should wonder what kind of opener you'd love to have in your paper. This is not hard to do or think about, so considering the following. Look at it right now.

1. Personal Statement for Japanese Politics and Religious Studies – Japan and the United States are a couple of contrasting worlds, which is why it is undeniable that the Japanese culture have attracted me to learn more about their oriental traditions and societies.
2. Social Work Personal Statement Opener – I have a deep aspiration to be a part of a social study work since it's in me to make some difference with the life of someone not related to me.
3. Business and Management Personal Statement – at a very young age, I have always wanted to run my own business and things a successful businessperson does to keep their profits coming in. That alone made my enthusiasm for it grew even stronger.
4. Economics Personal Statement Format for an Opener – having born outside of the United States, I felt that my background gave me a diverse outlook regarding economic approaches.
5. International Relations Personal Statement – the Middle East have always had political disputes, gaining worldwide attention. I want to help put stability in the region, even though it's an impossible thing to achieve.
6. Math Personal Statement Opener – the ideas for proofs have held a real fascination within me. It all starts with a simple axiom, ending up with a tough mathematical equation, which is what separates the subject from the rest.
7. History of Art Personal Statement Structure for an Opener – the history of art is an open door towards a cultural, historical, personal enrichment and artistic growth. With the right motivation, it has many interesting and fruitful career opportunity for everyone.
8. Mathematics/ Actuarial Science Personal Statement – Math isn't just an ordinary subject, but a universal language for those who love to deal with numbers.
9. Journalism Personal Statement – media is one of the most powerful and influential entity on earth.
10. Medicine Personal Statement Format Opener – the human body is truly one of the most remarkable creations in this world, which made my fascination towards the works of life grew even bigger.

Top Ten Quotes to Use in a Personal Statement

Having a great and effective personal statement format would surely enable you to have a bigger chance of landing an interview with the admissions committee. Though there is a need for you to impress, you should not forbid yourself from writing what comes into mind, but be sure not to use quotes that have been overly used by many. Now, look at the following sample quotes opener that may help your application stand out from the rest.

1. “My fascination for it has started at a young age and I have been interested...”
2. “Nursing is truly a demanding and challenging career...”
3. “If my memory serves me well, I’ve been fascinated and amazed with...”
4. “Mathematics is not just a subject for me, but a fascination that...”
5. “Fashion isn’t something that exists through glamour dresses...”
6. “As far as I remember, my interests have always been with...”
7. “Nursing is a profession by choice for me...”
8. “Economics is my passion, my way of life...”
9. “Academically, I know that I can contribute well for the growth of the program...”
10. “Determination is a part of my vocabulary and what I know I can contribute to the community and program...”

There you have it. The top things you should know about having to write a professional, well-written paper using an effective personal statement format. Following these should ensure that you get to land an interview with the admissions committee.

If you think that you need help in accomplishing these, do not hesitate to get some assistance from a reliable and credible writer or company online. What are you waiting for? Start to write your paper using this personal statement structure.

Read more tips and tricks on personal statement structure at www.PersonalStatementStructure.com